ROOSEVELT AND FAIRBANKS WIN

A Republican Landslide Sweeps the Nation From Atlantic to the Pacific, Carrying With it All the Doubtful States---Overwhelming Republican Pluralities Reported Everywhere.

THE RESULT IN OLD CENTRE!

Roosevelt, Fairbanks and Congressman Dresser Sweeps County.

Ellis L. Orvis Elected Judge Over John G. Love by a Majority Exceeding 1,000--Womelsdorf and Noll are Assemblymen--Elect.

BALANCE OF TICKET IS DEMOCRATIC.

It was a republican landslide from Maine to California, Roosevelt and Fairbanks carrying all the doubtful northern states by decided majorities and they will have at least 325 electoral votes. Parker is the worst defeated candidate since Greely.

Even the most sanguine Republicans are surprised and delighted at the verdict and the whole nation has cause to rejoice.

The election is over and our citizens can again settle down to business. Tuesday was an ideal day for holding an election and everything passed off very smoothly. The result in old Centre was a surprise in many respects and a record breaker. Our President, Theodore Roosevelt, has swept the county by a big majority, as did also Dresser for Congress. The Republicans elected one member of the Legislature, Hon. Philip E. Womelsdorf. On the other hand Ellis L. Orvis is elected Judge over John G. Love by an overwhelming majority which will exceed one thousand. Kepler and Knisely are defeated for Assembly and Womelsdorf will have for his associate John Noll.

Col, Edward A. Irvin, Republican, is the unanimous choice of the people for State Senate and received a handsome vote.

Arthur Kimport will have a big majority for Prothonotary and Runkle is elected district attorney. Pletcher for County Surveyor is elected by 36 majority.

MINNESOTA.

St. Paul.—As returns come in more freely it is apparent that Roosevelt's plurality will be over 100,000. Johnson, democrat, for governor, is leading Dunn, republican, by a substantial plurality, and seems likely to be elected unless Roosevelt's tremendous plurality should pull Dunn through.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Columbia, S. C.—Parker has carried South Carolina by not less than 40,000 plurality. The democratic state ticket has been elected without opposition. The state legislature is democratic and the seven congressmen elected are all democrats.

KANSAS.

Topeka.—The indications are that Roosevelt will carry the state by 30,000 plurality. The state ticket is badly scratched. All the Republican congressmen are elected.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Watertown.—Chairman Martin of the democratic state central committee, last night issued a statement in which he concedes that Roosevelt has polled 60,000 votes in the state; Parker 30,000 and Watson 15,000.

WYOMING.

Cheyenne—Wyoming is conceded by democratic leaders to have gone for Roosevelt by a large majority. The race for the governorship between Bryan and Brooks, republicans, and John E. Osborn, democrat, is close.

CONNECTICUT.

New Haven.—Returns from most of the 168 towns, in the state indicated that President Roosevelt swept the state, his plurality being estimated at almost 25,000. The entire republican state ticket was also elected by a large plurality.

MISSOURI.

St. Louis—At both democratic and republican headquarters it is said Roosevelt will run ahead of the state ticket. Republican Chairman Neidringhaus claims that "A Roosevelt landslide has struck Missouri."

TEXAS.

Austin, Tex.—Early returns show that the vote cast yesterday will hardly exceed 375,060, of which 250,000 were cast for Parker, 60,000 for Roosevelt and the balance scattering.

All democrats for congress elected in Texas.

VIRGINIA.

Richmond.—The election in Virginia yesterday was absolutely without disturbance so far as has been heard. The democratic majority on the presidential ticket will be about 25,000. Nine congressmen out of a total of ten have been chosen.

MARYLAND.

Baltimore—Chairman Hanna, of the republican state committee, claims that Maryland has undoubtedly gone republican. Official returns from the counties are still meagre.

WEST VIRGINIA,

Charleston—Reports from all parts of West Virginia indicate a plurality for Roosevelt and Fairbanks and victory for the democratic state ticket. Counting of votes is very slow.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston—At 8:45 Tuesday night Chairman Charles Talbot, of the republican state committee, said:

"We do not concede anything as yet on governor. Roosevelt appears to have carried Massachusetts by a plurality of over 100,000."

Sufficient returns from Tuesday's state elections have been received to indicate the election of William L. Douglass (dm.) for governor by almost 20,000 plurality.

COLORADO.

D. B. Farley, republican chairman, says Roosevelt has certainly carried the state and that Governor Peabody is safe though his vote will fall short of Roosevelt's.

INDIANA.

Indianapolis—Democratic National Chairman Taggart has conceded the election of Roosevelt and Fairbanks and has telegraphed his congratulations to Republican National Chairman Cortelyou.

Democratic State Chairman O'Brien concedes that the republicans have carried the state by 30,000 or over. He concedes the legislature to the republicans and this insures the election of two republican senators to succeed Senators Fairbanks and Beveridge.

OHIO.

Columbus, O.—At 9:30 p. m. Governor Herrick and Chairman Dick at republican headquarter, estimated that Roosevelt's plurality in Ohio would exceed the plurality of 113,000 of last year.

Columbus—The estimate at 9 p. m. was that the republican plurality in Ohio would exceed the high watermark of 139,000 in 1894, and also any previous republican record on congressman. It is believed that the socialists increased their vote at the expense of the democrats.

DELAWARE

Wilmington—The republicans claim that they will have forty of the fifty-two members of the legislature on joint ballot. The managers of the Addicks faction of the party claim a majority of the legislature for their leader on joint ballot, and say they will elect Addicks to the United States senate, in January to succeed Senator Ball, whose term expires next March.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia—The Republicans have made an almost complete sweep in Pennsylvania, carrying the State for Roosevelt and Fairbanks by over 300,000 and electing twenty-five of the twenty-six state senators and twenty-nine of the thirty-two congressmen. They have also elected 175 of the 204 members of the House of Representatives. This gives them control of both branches of the legislature by a large majority, insuring the election of governor Pennypacker's appointee, Philander C. Knox, for United States senator, to succeed the late M. S. Quay.

John P. Elkin, Republican, is elected state supreme court judge by a majority almost as great as that cast for the Republican national ticket.

The Republicans have also carried nearly all the judicial districts in which elections were held for common pleas judges and the five counties in which associate judges were chosen.

United States Senator Penrose, Republican state chairman, said last night:

"My advices from all parts of the state indicate that the majority of 325,000 which we claimed will be equalled, if not exceeded. It is a great victory for prosperity and an emphatic endorsement by the people of the administration of McKinley and Roosevelt.

NEW YORK.

New York, November 8.—8:45 p. m.—The latest figures from New York city and state indicate that Roosevelt's plurality above the Bronx is about 265,000 and Parker's below the Bronx, is about 37,000, giving the State to Roosevelt by 228,000. For governor Higgins apparently is 165,000 ahead in the up-state counties and Herrick 80,000 better than Higgins in the city, electing Higging governor by about 85.000.

The legislature is undoubtedly overwhelmingly Republican. assuring the election of a Republican to succeed Chauncey M. Depew.

NEW JERSEY.

Trenton, New Jersey, November 8.—The result in New Jersey has been a veritable landslide and President Roosevelt's plurality will approach, if it does not equal, the plurality obtained by McKinley four years ago, when the state was carried by the Republicans by 56,889 Edward C. Stokes, the Republican candidate for governor, against whom a vigorous campaign was made by Charles C. Black, the Democratic candidate on an equal taxation platform, runs behind Roosevelt, but will have a plurality of 30,000.

The state legislature will show increased Republican membership and will be overwhelmingly Republican on joint ballot. This insures the re-election of John Kean to the United States senate.

Newark—The Republican state committee claims that Roosevelt has carried the state by 60,000 or over. Newark is Republican by 10,000. Essex county will go nearly 20,000 Republican.

The election of Stokes for governor is claimed by the Republicans by 25,000.

WISCONSIN.

Milwaukee—It is estimated that Roosevelt will have a plurality of 50,000 in the state and La Folette, Republican, a safe plurality for governor.

LOUISIANA.

New Orleans—The Democrats have carried Louisiana for Parker and Davis by a majority of 65,000. Seven Democratic congressmen have been elected.

ARKANSAS.

Little Rock, Ark.—Early returns show a light vote in Arkansas. From these the democratic plurality is conservatively estimated at 40,000. The democratic nominees for congress have safe majorities.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grank Forks—State returns are coming in very slowly. So for a normal vote is indicated, with 25,000 majority for Roosevelt.

TENNESSEE.

Nashville—The vote in Tennessee has been light. Early returns indicate an estimated Democratic plurality of 25,000

IOWA.

Des Moines—Twenty Iowa precincts show Republican gains indicating 150,000 plurality for Roosevelt in the state.

FLORIDA.

Jacksonville—The few scattered returns so far received indicate the usual democrat majority in Florida.

NEVADA

Reno.—So far as heard from the republican state ticket is in the lead and Yearington, republican, for congress, is probably elected over Van Dusen, democrat. The state is conceded to Roosevelt

MICHIGAN.

Detroit.—The republican state central committee at 8.30 o'clock announced that the returns they have received from the state indicate that Roosevelt will have a majority of from 125,000 to 135,000

UTAH.

Salt Lake City—The heaviest vote ever polled is reported with much scratching. At democratic state headquarters it is conceded Roosevelt has carried the state by 8,000 plurality.

NEBRASKA.

Lincoln.—A few precinct returns from the First congressional district show that Roosevelt is running ahead of the McKinley vote and Parker far behind Bryan.

Pretty Wedding.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. M. M. French at one o'clock, Nov 2nd, when Miss Maud Zimmerman, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Zimmerman, of this place, was united in marriage to I. G. Messner, a popular young operator of Jersey Shore.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. Ebersole, of Sterling Run, Cameron Co., in the presence of several friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of white silk landsdowne and was attended by Miss Mary E. Penney, of Snow Shoe, as maid of honor. The latter wore a cream voile over silk.

Both bride and maid of honor carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations. The groom's attendant was his cousin, Vernon Messner, of Clearfield.

After the ceremony the wedding party went to the Windsor hotel, where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served.

In the evening the bride and groom left on a wedding tour to Niagara Falls and points of interest in Canada.

Miss Zimmerman was one of Centre county's most successful teachers and her loss as a teacher is greatly deplored.

After Nov. 15th they will be at home in the fine residence owned by Mr. Messner in Jersey Shore.

Cider Scrap.

The Freshman-Sophomore cider scrap came off Tuesday evening, and resulted in a tie and a great deal of noise and torn clothing. The Freshmen had John Baumgardner bring the cider on the campus in his laundry wagon. The Freshmen, coming from a class meeting, gave their yell and surrounded the cider, whereupon the Sophomores came out in force and attempted to prevent the Freshmen from treating the Juniors to cider, with the result above stated. The scrap was the beginning of a great deal of jollification, as the Sophomores opened a cider barrel of their own down town, and the Seniors gallantly hauled cider to the Ladies' Cottage and to the homes of members of the Faculty.

A BAD WOMAN LOSES HER BEARINGS.

Came Here From Bellefonte and Goes to Sleep in Lower Railroad Yard.

Among the passengers who got off the B. E. V. train, when it arrived in this city late Saturday night, was a young women, who appeared bewildered and intoxicated. She was fairly well dressed and from her actions it was not to be doubted that she was a soiled dove. From the station she wondered aimlessly down the railroad tracks in the lower yard, and was in danger of being killed by one of the many passing trains, when some of the railroaders led her away to safety and pointed out the road to reach the heart of the city. In a maudlin voice she made it known that she was from Bellefonte, but didn't know how she got on the train or why she came here. The woman also said that somebody must have doped her. Late that night she was again found lying down near the railroad track, when aroused she got up and left, but at daylight Sunday morning a switching crew found her lying on the ground a short distance from the railroad track, near Ferguson's lane. She had been out in the cold all night and was a sorry looking object when the men lifted her up. She disappeared after that and nothing has been seen of her since.—L. H. Democrat.

Election at the High School.

An interesting election was held in the High School Tuesday when the pupils took part in a practical demonstration of balloting. Prof. J. D. Meyer secured ballots and a full set of election blanks and then turned the formation of an election board over to the pupils who swore in the proper officers and then began voting. The pupils challenged one another, voted on age and went through all the features of a regular election. Below is the "official" vote as returned.

For Judge of Supreme Court—Elkin, 36; Thompson, 29; Stevens, 5.

The Central Conference.

March 23rd has been the date set by the Board of Bishops of the Methodist church sitting at New Haven, Conn., for the opening of the Central Pennsylvania Conference, which will be entertained at Berwick. Bishop J. N. Fitzgerald, D. D., L L. D., of St. Louis, Mo., was appointed as the presiding bishop of the sessions.

The conference will be the largest ever entertained in Berwick, the Central Pennsylvania conference, including five districts: Altoona, Danville, Harrisburg, Juniata and Williamsport, and between 250 and 275 ministers from throughout the State will be in attendance.

The Layman's Association of the Methodist church will also convene in Berwick during convention week. Two sessions will be held on Friday and Saturday, and a large number of delegates will also be in attendance, as this is a district organization.

Pennies Grow Into Dollars.

Among the many ways of raising money for the remodeling of the Methodist church of Salona here is one that seemed to turn out better than the rest. About three months ago the minister gave each one of the infant department an envelope with one cent in it for a starter. Last Sunday they were returned and when the money was counted it amounted to $100.

ear:

"I don't know what your interest is in the small gold charm you were talking about, but you have done some good work in this case, and I don't mind telling you what I know about it. That little gold ball has caused the police much trouble. It is on the list of effects found in the room where the candle was seen burning; but when all these petty belongings of Mrs. Jeffrey were gathered up and carried back to her husband, this special one was not to be found among them. It was lost in transit, nor has it ever been seen since. And who do you think it was who called attention to this loss and demanded that the article be found? Not Mr. Jeffrey, who seems to lay little or no stress upon it, but the old man they call Uncle David. He, who to all appearance possessed no interest in his niece's personal property, was on hand the moment these things were carried into her husband's house, with the express intention, it seems, of inquiring for this gold ball, which he declared to be a family heirloom. As such it belonged to him as the present holder of the property, and to him only. Attention being thus called to it, it was found to be missing, and as no one but the police seemed to be to blame for its loss the matter was hushed up and would have been regarded as too insignificant for comment, the trinket being intrinsically worthless, if Mr. Moore had not continued to make such a fuss about it. This ball, he declared, was worth as much to a Moore as all the rest of his property—which was bosh, you know—and the folly of these assertions and the depth of the passions he displayed whenever the subject was mentioned have made some of us question if he is the innocent inheritor he has tried to make himself out. At all events, I know for a certainty that the district attorney holds his name in reserve, if the grand jury fails to bring in an indictment against Miss Tuttle."

"The district attorney is wise," I remarked, and fell a-thinking.

Had this latent suspicion against Mr. Moore any solid foundation? Was he the guilty man? The memorandum I had come across in the book which had been lately pulled down from the library shelves showed that, notwithstanding his testimony to the contrary, he had been in that house close upon that fatal night if not on the very night itself. It also showed his extreme interest in the traditions of the family. But did it show anything more? Had he interrupted his writing to finish his query in blood, and had one of his motives for this crime been the acquisition of this filigree ball? If so, why had he left it on the table upstairs? A candle had been lit in that room. Could it have been by him in his search for this object? It would be a great relief to believe so. What was the reason, then, that my mind refused so emphatically to grasp this possibility and settle upon him as the murderer of Mrs. Jeffrey? I cannot tell. I hated the man, and I likewise deeply distrusted him. But I could not, even after this revelation of his duplicity, connect him in my thoughts with absolute crime without a shock to my intuitions. Happily my scruples were not shared by my colleagues. They had listed him. Here I felt my shoulder touched, and a newspaper was thrust into my hand by the man who had just addressed me.

"Look down the lost and found column," said he. "The third advertisement you will see there came from the district attorney's office. The next one was inserted by Mr. Moore himself."

I followed his pointing finger and read two descriptions of the filigree ball. The disproportion in the rewards offered was apparent. That promised by Uncle David was calculated to rouse any man's cupidity and should have resulted in the bauble's immediate return.

"He got ahead of the police that time," I laughed. "When did these advertisements appear?"

"During the days you were absent from Washington."

"And how sure are you that he did not get this jewel back?"

"Oh, we are sure. His continued anxiety and still active interest prove this, even if our surveillance had been less perfect."

"And the police have been equally unsuccessful?"

"Equally."

"After every effort?"

"Every."

"Who was the man who collected and carried out those things from the southwest chamber?"

He smiled.

"You see him," said he.

"It was you?"

"Myself."

"And you are sure this small ball was among them?"

"No. I only know that I have seen it somewhere, but that it wasn't among the articles I delivered to Mr. Jeffrey."

"How did you carry them?"

"In a hand bag which I locked myself."

"Before leaving the southwest chamber?"

"Yes."

"Then it is still in that room?"

"Find it," was his laconic reply.

That night I went back to the Moore house and sought first on the open floor and then in every possible cranny for the missing trinket. But I failed to find it and was about to acknowledge myself defeated when my eye fell on the long brocaded curtains which I had drawn across the several windows to hide every gleam of light from the street. They were almost free from folds, but I shook them well, especially the one nearest the table, and naturally with no effect.

"Folly," I muttered, yet did not quite desist. For the great tassels still hung at the sides and— Well, you may call it an impossible find or say that if the bauble was there it should have been discovered in the first search for it. I will not say no. I can only tell you what happened. When I took one of those tassels in my hand I thought, as it twirled under my touch, that I saw something gleam in its faded old threads that did not belong there. Startled, and yet not thoroughly realizing that I had come upon the object of my search, I picked at this thing and found it to be a morsel of gold chain that had become entangled in it. When I had pulled it out it showed a small golden ball at one end, filigreed over and astonishingly heavy for its size and apparent delicacy.

The talisman of this old family was found. I had but to discover what it held concealed to understand what had baffled Mr. Moore and made the mystery he had endeavored to penetrate so insolvable. And what did I find inside? Something so different from what I expected, something so trivial and seemingly harmless, that it was not until I recalled the final words of Uncle David's memorandum that I realized its full import and the possibilities it suggested. In itself it was nothing but a minute magnifying glass; but when used in connection with—what? Ah, that was just what Uncle David failed to say, possibly to know. No; guessing would not answer. I must trust to the inspiration of the moment, which suggested with almost irresistible conviction:

The picture! That inane and seemingly worthless drawing over the fireplace in The Colonel's Own, whose presence in so rich a room has always been a mystery!

Why this object should have suggested itself to me and with such instant conviction I cannot readily say. Whether, from my position near the bed, the sight of this old drawing recalled the restless nights of all who had lain in face of its sickly smile, or whether some recollection of that secret law of the Moores which forbade the removal of any of their pictures from the time worn walls, or a remembrance of the curiosity which this picture excited in every one who looked at it—Francis Jeffrey among the number—I no sooner asked myself what object in this house might possibly yield counsel or suggest aid when subjected to the influence of a magnifying glass than the answer, which I have already given, sprang instantly into my mind—the picture!

Greatly excited, I sprang upon a chair, took down the drawing from the wall and laid it face up on the bed. Then I placed the glass over one of the large coils surrounding the insipid face, and was startled enough, in spite of all mental preparation, to perceive the crinkly lines which formed it resolve themselves into script and the script into words, some of which were perfectly legible.

The drawing, simple as it looked, was a communication in writing to those who used a magnifying glass to read it. I could hardly contain my triumph, hardly find the self control necessary to a careful study of its undulating and often conflicting lines and to the slow picking out of the words therein contained.

But when I had done this and had copied the whole of the wandering scrawl on a page of my notebook the result was of value.

Read and judge for yourself:

"Coward that I am, I am willing to throw upon posterity the shadow of a crime whose consequences I dare not incur in life. Confession I must make. To die and leave no record of my deed is impossible, yet how tell my story so that only my own heirs may read and they when at the crisis of their fate? I believe I have found the way by this drawing and the injunction I have left to the holders of the filigree ball.

"No man ever wished his enemy dead more than I did, and no man ever spent more cunning on the deed. Master in my own house, I contrived a device by which the man who held my fate in his hands fell on my library hearth, with no one near and no sign by which to associate me with the act. Does this seem like the assertion of a madman? Go to the old chamber familiarly called 'The Colonel's Own.' Enter its closet, pull out its two drawers and in the opening thus made seek for the loophole at the back, through which, if you stoop low enough, you can catch a glimpse of the library hearth and its great settle. With these in view, slip your finger along the wall on your right, and when it touches an obstruction pass it if it is a handle—for that is only used to rewind the apparatus and must be turned from you until it can be turned no farther—but if it is a depression you encounter press and press hard on the knob concealed within it. But beware when any one you love is seated in that corner of the settle where the cushion invites rest lest it be your fate to mourn and wail as it is mine to curse the hour when I sought to clear my way by murder, for the doom of the man of blood is upon me.

"The hindrance is gone out of my life, but a horror has entered it beyond the conception of any soul that has not yielded itself to the unimaginable influences emanating from an accomplished crime. I cannot be content with having pressed that spring once. A mania is upon me which, after thirty years of useless resistance and superhuman struggle, still draws me from bed and sleep to rehearse in ghastly fashion that deed of my early manhood. I cannot resist it. To tear out the deadly mechanism, unhinge weight and drum and rid the house of every evidence of crime would but drive me to shriek my guilt aloud and act in open pantomime what I now go through in fearsome silence and secrecy. When the hour comes, as come it must, that I cannot rise and enter that fatal closet, I shall still enact the deed in dreams and shriek aloud in my sleep and wish myself dead and yet fear to die lest my hell be to go through all eternity slaying over and over my man in ever growing horror and repulsion.

"Do you wish to share my fate? Try to effect through blood a release from the difficulties menacing you."

CHAPTER XXII.

I RESTORED the picture to its place and left the building. As I did so the first signs of dawn became visible in the east. I had expended three hours in picking out the meaning concealed in the wavy lines of the old picture.

I was early at headquarters that morning, but not so early as to find the superintendent alone. A group of men were already congregated about him in his small office, and when, on being admitted, I saw among them the district attorney, Durbin and another famous detective, I instinctively knew what matter was under discussion.

There was with them a fourth man, who stood apart. On him the general attention had been concentrated at my entrance and to him it now returned. He was an unpretentious person of kindly aspect. To any one accustomed to Washington residents, he bore the unmistakable signs of being one of the many departmental employees whose pay is inadequate to the necessities of his family. Of his personal peculiarities I noted two. He blinked when he talked and stuttered painfully when excited. Notwithstanding these defects he made a good impression and commanded confidence. This I soon saw was of importance, for the story he now entered upon was one calculated to make me forget my own errand and even to question my own convictions.

The first intimation I received of the curious nature of his communication was through the following questions, put to him by the major:

"You are sure this gentleman is identical with the one pointed out to you last night?

"Very sure, sir. I can swear to it."

"You recognize him positively?"

"Positively. I should have picked him out with the same assurance if I had seen him in some other city and in a crowd of as fine looking gentlemen as himself. His face made a great impression on me. You see, I had ample time to study it in the few minutes we stood so close together.

"So you have said. Will you be kind enough to repeat the circumstance? I should like the man who has just come in to hear your description of this scene. Give the action, please. It is all very interesting."

The stranger glanced inquisitively in my direction, and turned to obey the superintendent.

"I was returning to my home in Georgetown on the evening of May 11, the day of the great tragedy. My wife was ill, and I had been into town to see a physician, and should have gone directly home; but I was curious to see how high the flood was running—you remember it was over the banks that night. So I wandered out on the bridge, and came upon the gentleman about whom you have been questioning me. He was standing all alone leaning on the rail—thus."

Here the speaker drew up a chair, and, crossing his arms over its back, bent his head down over them. "I did not know him, but the way he eyed the water leaping and boiling in a yellow flood beneath was not the way of a curious man like myself, but of one who was meditating some desperate deed. He was handsome and well dressed, but he looked a miserable wretch and was in a state of such complete self absorption that he did not notice me, though I had stopped not five feet from his side. I expected to see him throw himself over, but instead of that he suddenly raised his head, and, gazing straight before him, not at the heavy current, but at some vision in his own mind, broke forth in these words, spoken as I had never heard words spoken before"—

Here the speaker's stuttering got the better of him and the district attorney had time to say:

"What were these words? Speak them slowly; we have all the time there is."

Instantly the man plucked up heart, and, eying us all impressively, was able to say:

"They were these: 'She must die! She must die!' No name, but just the one phrase twice repeated, 'She must die!' This startled me, and, hardly knowing whether to lay hands on him or to turn about and run, I was moving slowly away when he drew his arms from the rail—like this—and still staring into space added in the same hard and determined voice this one word more, 'Tonight,' and, wheeling about, passed me with one blank and wholly unconscious look and betook himself toward the city. As he went by, his lips opened for the third time. 'Which means,' he cried, between a groan and a shriek, 'a bullet for her and'— I wish I had heard the rest, but he was out of my hearing before his sentence was finished."

"What time was this?"

"As near half past 5 as possible. It was 6 when I reached home a few minutes later."

"Ah, he must have gone to the cemetery after this."

"I am quite sure of it."

"Why didn't you follow the man?" grumbled Durbin.

"It wasn't my business. He was a stranger and possibly mad. I didn't know what to do."

"What did you do?"

"Went home and kept quiet; my wife was very ill that night and I had my own cause for anxiety."

"You, however, read the papers next morning?"

"No, sir, nor for many days. My wife grew constantly worse and for a week I didn't leave her, not knowing but that every breath would be her last. I was dead to everything outside the sickroom, and when she grew ly, but with unerring certainty, something small, round and deadly fell plumb from the library ceiling to where the settle had formerly stood against the hearthstone. Finding nothing there but vacancy to expend itself upon, it swung about for a moment on what looked like a wire or a whipcord, then slowly came to rest within a foot or so from the floor.

A cry from the horrified officials below was what first brought me to myself. Withdrawing from my narrow quarters, I hastened down to them and added one more white face to the three I found congregated in the doorway. In the diabolical ingenuity we had seen displayed crime had reached its acme, and the cup of human depravity seemed full.

When we had regained in some measure our self possession we all advanced for a closer look at the murderous object dangling before us. We found it to be a heavy leaden weight painted on its lower end to match the bosses of stucco work which appeared at regular intervals in the ornamentation of the ceiling. When drawn up into place—that is, when occupying the hole from which it now hung suspended—the portion left to protrude would evidently bear so small a proportion to its real bulk as to justify any eye

HEAVY FOG LIKE BLANKET

Settled Over New York City and Harbor.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT

The City of Lowell Ran Into and Sank the East River Ferry Boat Columbia Passengers All Taken Off Safely.

THERE WERE TEN HORSES DROWNED.

New York, November 5.—A thick blanket of fog which settled down over New York city and harbor during the night seriously disarranged traffic, both by land and water, early Friday and resulted in at least one serious accident, when an East river ferry boat was run into and sunk. All of the passengers were saved, but a number of horses which were being taken across the river went down with the boat and were lost. On the harbor and in the rivers craft of all kind moved with the greatest care, and delay was evident in every quarter. In the city the elevated and surface care suffered serious delay and schedules were practically abandoned. On the elevated lines the dense fog made it impossible for the engineers to distinguish signals at any distance and as a consequence the trains which usually make fast time during the rush hours were driven very slowly and thousands of persons were late in reaching the down-town districts.

The ferry boat Columbia, of the Brooklyn-Wall street line, was run into and sunk Friday by the Norwich liner City of Lowell. There was no loss of life.

There were about 150 passengers and seventeen teams on board the Columbia at the time of the accident. All of the passengers were taken off in safety, but eight or ten horses were drowned.

The City of Lowell was coming down the river and in the dense fog struck the Columbia amidships, just clear of the paddle wheel. The Columbia floated around for a while and began to settle. A hawser was thrown from the City of Lowell and the Columbia made fast and all passengers, so far as known, were taken aboard the steamer. Later the hawser parted in some unaccountable manner and the Columbia finally sunk near one of the slips of the Union Ferry company, on the Brooklyn side. The Columbia had been making trips from Montague street, Brooklyn, to Wall street New York, for thirty years.

The Garden City, a ferry boat plying between Long Island City and New York, had many narrow escapes from serious damage during one of her trips through the dense fog. Seven times she collided with various crafts before she reached her slip in this city. The only serious damage sustained by the Garden City was when she bumped into the big Sound steamer Maine. A hole was stove in the ferry boat's side and a portion of her guard rail was carried away. The hole was far above the water line, however, and the ferry boat did not sink. The Garden City had 1000 passengers aboard. The ferry boat Somerset was one of the boats in collision with the Garden City. She was not seriously damaged and reached her slip in safety.

Can You Eat?

J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Texas, says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach, I lost all strength and ran down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles, I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

To Jail for Love of a Dog.

"Shoot Toodles or go to jail. If you won't kill the dog I'll have to hold you for court," said alderman A. C. McGovern to Fred Bohlmer, who had been hauled into court at Pittsburg, because his French poodle had bitten a neighbor's child. The neighbor offered to drop the prosecution if Toodles were killed, but Bohlmer refused.

"Your Honor, I love that dog as much as any one of my 11 children," he said, and all of those children would be heartbroken if Toodles died. I'll wait for a court trial."

The alderman tried to convince the man that it was absurd for him to go to jail for the sake of a dog, but Bohlmer said he loved his dog, and he was led away to jail.

Thousands Cured

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of piles. "I bought a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve on the recommendation of our druggist," so writes C. H. LaCroix, of Zavalla, Tex. "and used it for a stubborn case of piles. It cured me permanently." Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

Bears in an Eastern Town.

The following was taken from the Denver "Post."

Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 25.—Ten bears invaded this place Saturday and after killing one horse and several pigs and spreading terror among the stock generally started through the main street, routed the Saturday crowds in several stores and wound up by besieging twenty or more inhabitants in a yard of one of the suburbs.

"From here the bears went to Farrandsville, a suburb, where an unsuccessful attempt was made by a party of farmers to stop them. With wild snorts they turned on the farmers, who fled for shelter.

"The bears made no effort to follow, but turned their attention to a horse which had been left tied to a fence in a yard. The farmers fired, but not before the bears had despatched the horse.

"Three bears were killed by the volley and the others, losing courage, fled back to the mountain ridges."

Wisdom of the Young.

Sometimes the knowledge that the small boy has of politics is surprising. A case in point came to light the other day at one of the public schools in this city. The principal, in questioning the boys of the lower classes in the school, asked them numerous questions as to citizenship. At last she came to an all important question.

"Now," she asked slowly, "as every boy has ambition I would like to know how many boys in this room would like to be President of the United States?"

Every boy save one raised his hand. The teacher looked in a surprised manner at one little fellow whose hands remained in his lap.

"Why, Bob," she exclaimed, "haven't you any desire to become President of this great country?"

"I'd like to all right," replied Bob mournfully, "but 'tain't no use. I'm a Democrat.

—Have you ever tried DR. PRICE'S WHEAT FLAKE CELERY FOOD. It is palatable, nutritious, easy of digestion and ready to eat, made from high grade wheat, Celery infused. In the process of making, not a human hand touches it from start to finish. If eaten freely at bed time it produces refreshing sleep. Ask your grocer for it.

—No one would ever be bothered with constipation if everyone knew how naturally and quickly Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the stomach and bowels.

THE GINGER JAR.

Respectability.

"Why is it," asked the man with the scraggly beard, "that running a distillery or brewery is considered so much more respectable than keeping a saloon?"

"That's easy," replied the society leader; "there's so much money in wholesaling that it can't help being respectable."

The Meredith Ending.

The novel had wormed its way through 387 pages of vicissitudes by stern parents and obstinate relatives. But at last the healthy hero and the handsome heroine overcame all obstacles and were clasped in each other's arms.

The conclusion was eminently satisfactory, as they lived happily for ten years afterward.

A Good Reason.

"Colored criminals," said the Chief of Detectives, commit only stupid or brutal crimes, never any requiring finesse or delicacy. For instance, you never heard of a negro pickpocket."

"Scarcely," replied Hawkshaw, for it was be. "A good pickpocket is necessarily light-fingered."

An Unfair Blow.

"Have you a taste for music?" asked Miss Chillbeen, of Boston.

"I don't know," replied the millionaire mine owner's daughter from Lead-pipe Gulch. "I never tasted any, but I like to hear it played."

That ended it, for Miss Chillbeen was down and out for twenty minutes, though she afterwards claimed that she lost on a foul.

The Coleville Philosopher.

Unless a man occasionally taxes his faculties to the utmost, they will soon begin to fall.

So, unless a man works at his graft industriously, he soon may have no graft to work at.

An old man is like an old horse; if you wish to get any work out of him, you must work him all the time.

There is no closed season for hunting trouble.

Another Argument.

Binks—I see Jones grew a Van Dyke beard while he was away.

Jinks—I never did like that fellow, and that makes one more point against him.

Modern Mother Goose.

Little Boy Blue, come blow thyself.
For papa has left you all of his pelf.
Where are thy relatives, Henry and Bill?
Down at the Courthouse, breaking the will.

Unanimous.

"How's the election going out this way?" asked the intelligent drummer.

"Well," replied Softfoot Jake Meadows, of Bayou Reedy, Miss., "the local Republican party is confined to his bed with malarial rheumatism, so I guess it's going to be unanimous."

The World's Fair.

A bachelor girl suggests that when a man breaks his heart it is like a lobster breaking a claw—another sprouts immediately and grows in its place.

The new style of fall dresses is going to make it harder than ever to get around a girl this year

According to the society column, there are no such things as women any more—only ladies.

Alarmed the Bride.

An absent-minded young woman of Guthrie, Kansas, having been duly married started off on her bridal tour. She and her husband stopped in Oklahoma City at the Illinois hotel. Some time in the night there came a succession of terrible shrieks from the room occupied by the bride and groom, and the clerks, porters and employes generally rushed upstairs, only to meet a frantic female figure, clad in white, fleeing in desperate haste from the apartments, crying: "Oh there's a man in my room!" The groom one boot on and the other in his hand, was the picture of amazement. He explained that he had just come upstairs and was in the act of undressing (his wife had previously retired), when she suddenly awoke with a shriek and fled. "What was the matter?" asked the clerk. "I don't know," said her husband. Just then the bride, enveloped in a huge bedspread, procured for her by a chambermaid, came back, looking very red and foolish, and in a half minute she explained the mystery by saying: "Oh, Fred, I forgot I was married, and when I awoke I was so frightened."

Mistook Hunter for Game.

George Hoover, of Bellefonte, was one of the Centre countians to early take advantage of the hunting season, but his sport of last week came near proving fatal. He had sighted a number of wild turkeys and stepped into a clump of bushes to conceal himself and get a good shot. He had removed his hat and was preparing to bring down his game when a discharge of a gun from a stranger peppered his face and arms with shot.

Under partial cover of the thicket he had been mistaken for a wild turkey, and had not the bushes been pretty thick would have been badly injured. He sprang from the underbrush and called to the man with the gun just in time to avert a second charge.

When the stranger discovered his error he hurried to Mr. Hoover, as did several other hunters in the vicinity, and he was assisted home where 41 shots were taken from his face, neck, hands and arms.

Mackeyville Lady Catches a 'Coon.

Mrs. Roy Eldred, of Mackeyville discovered three 'coons on a tree near her residence Sunday morning. She immediately called her husband, who rushed to get his neighbor, H. G. Hurd, to assist him in capturing them. During his absence, which was but a few minutes, one of the 'coons slipped down the tree and Mrs. Eldred, who couldn't withstand the temptation of making an effort to capture it, rushed at it and seized it by the caudal appendage just as it attempted to pass through the fence and with a sudden swing against a tree knocked the life out of it and was standing guard over its dead carcass, when her husband and his friend arrived upon the scene armed with ax-handles, which they then used upon the remaining two. A coon apiece was the result of the morning hunt, although the wife carries off the honors of getting the first coon and also of killing it not without arms but without firearms.

Fatally Burned,

Little Nora, daughter of Samuel Holt of Snow Shoe Twp., met with an untimely and sad death on Saturday, 22nd The three little girls being left alone for a short time, they attempted to pop some corn; in so doing little Nora's dress caught fire and although her older sister Mildred did all in her power to extinguish the flames she was so badly burned that she died about midnight on Sunday night. She would have been six years on the 12th of November; was a bright child of loveable disposition. Funeral was held on Wednesday. Interment at the Askey cemetery.

TEN MEN HURLED TO DEATH

In a Shaft in the Mines at Nanticoke.

PLUNGED 1,500 FEET

While Descending the Engineer Lost Control of His Machinery—All Given Up as Lost.

INTENSE EXCITEMENT PREVAILS.

WILKESBARRE, November 2.—One of the most appalling mine accidents in the history of the Wyoming valley for many years past occurred at No. 1 Auchinclose shaft, operated by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal company, at Nanticoke, at an early hour Tuesday morning, by which ten men were hurled to instant death and three seriously injured. The men were mostly all upon the mine carriage to be lowered to the workings below.

THE ENGINEER LOST CONTROL.

The signal was given to engineer Fine, who began lowering the men. The carriage had gone but a few feet when the engineer lost control of his engines, owing to the reverse levers failing to work, and the carriage, with its load of human souls, ten in all, was dashed beyond the Ross vein, landing nearly 1,000 feet below the surface and from there they were precipitated 300 feet farther into a sump.

Had they not been killed outright they would without doubt have been drowned in the sump, which is fully fifty feet deep with water.

ALL GIVEN UP AS LOST.

Up to eight o'clock last night no human aid could reach them and every man on the ill-fated carriage has been given up by the officials as lost. The victims, who were miners, laborers and company hands, all resided in Nanticoke, the most of whom leave families, many of whom are in need.

The dead are: Wm. Ashton, Jr., John Ignotowitz, John Tsarek, Joseph Kasian, John Konon, Frank Sytakowiski, Joseph Novick, Bolish Opiorski, John Kemper and Joseph Goshen.

The injured are: John Knockdale, Harold Vernot and David Houston, who were bruised and cut about the body by flying wreckage while standing at the mouth of the shaft ready to descend.

INTENSE EXCITEMENT PREVAILS.

Intense excitement continues to prevail about the mouth of the shaft to-night. Women and children are running about crying and moaning for those who are at the bottom. There are fully 75 miners and laborers in the mine dragging the sump for the bodies and it may require two or three days before any of the dead can be recovered.

YOUNG GUNNER'S HEAD BLOWN OFF

A Union County Youth Meets With a Horrible Death While Hunting for Rabbits.

Owen Criswell, a 16-year-old son of J. Calvin Criswell, who lives near the White Deer Churches in Union county, met with a horrible death while hunting for rabbits near his home last Wednesday shortly after noon. He was one of a gunning party, who separated about noon, most of them going home for dinner. After dinner J. H. Criswell, of White Deer, and his father, T. C. Criswell, of Kelley X Roads, who are relatives of the dead boy, resumed their hunt. They had not proceeded very far until they scented an odor of burning cloth and upon investigation they found the body of young Criswell lying near a wire fence with the back of his head blown off and his clothing on fire. His body was still warm and it is likely that the accident had not occurred more than fifteen or twenty minutes before the ghastly discovery was made. His gun was on the opposite side of the wire fence, where there was a small brush pile, from which a rabbit had been chased earlier in the day. It is supposed that young Criswell was leaning over the fence and was poking the brush with the butt of his gun, when it was discharged. His right ear and the back part of his head were blown off. His clothing was afire and his clothing was burned to a crisp. 'Squire Spotts, of Kelly X Roads, was notified and empanelled a jury who, after hearing the testimony of witnesses, rendered a verdict of accidental shooting.

Shot a Deer and Bear.

David H. Myers, the Huntingdon lawyer, was out for rabbits near Mill Creek on Tuesday and shot a bear. Fire on the mountains drove bruin into a clearing, where Mr. Myers was looking for a bunny. The few remaining hairs on the lawyer's head stood straight up at the sight of the bear, but David's long suit is to be ready for any emergency, and so he peppered away at once and kept at it until the bear was as dead as the Democratic party. It is said that two other bears were seen near Mill Creek the same day.

Mord Aarrick and a bevy of other Huntingdon gunners shot a deer in Diamond valley. It weighed about 90 pounds.

HORRIBLE DISCOVERY.

The Mutilated Body of Albert Johnson Found Near Moshannon.

It was a blood-curdling spectacle which met the eyes of Charles Weaver, of Moshannon, at an early hour on Wednesday morning. He was proceeding down the tracks of the N. J. & H. R. railroad on his way to work. When he had reached a point two miles below or east of the Gillintown station the early morning light disclosed to him the body of a man lying alongside the track. The body was so mutilated as to be scarcely recognizable as that of a human person.

Charles at once proceeded to Clarence and reported the ghastly discovery to Constable W. B. Hall, and that official, accompanied by several other men, proceeded to the spot indicated. First, however, he telephoned for 'Squire Weaver, of Moshannon, and that gentleman soon arrived on the scene.

The usual panel of six jurors was selected and all the identification and investigation possible under the circumstances was made. The remains were identified as those of a man named Albert Johnson, but nothing is certain regarding his place of residence. John Confer, the undertaker at Snow Shoe, took charge of the mains, placing them in a box brought for the purpose, and giving him the necessary burial.

Farmer Landed on the Cow Catcher.

Samuel Hoover, a farmer residing at Hanna Station, while driving his team across a railroad crossing at Vale, near Tyson, Thursday night about 8 o'clock was struck by a fast Bald Eagle freight train, demolishing his wagon and injuring one of his horses. Mr. Hoover was thrown a considerable distance and landed on the front of the cow catcher. The engineer did not know of the accident until arriving in the yard at Tyrone, when the scaleman noticed the form of a man on the cow catcher. The train was stopped and the unconscious victim was removed. His head and face were badly cut and he was severely bruised about the shoulders. He was removed to the operating room at the station and his injuries given attention.

Passenger Sick on Train.

W. G. Stover of Millheim was a passenger on the Bald Eagle west bound morning train and when the Unionville station was reached he had an attack of vertigo. As the train stopped he was thrown forward and struck the seat in front of him, cutting a bad gash under his chin, which rendered him unconcious. A doctor, who happened to be on the train, attended him and when Bellefonte was reached he had his injury dressed.

Large Orders for Cars.

The largest single order for freight cars given in years was that of the Pennsylvania Railroad company last week, when it closed contracts for the immediate building of 6,000 coal, coke and box cars. The order by the Pennsylvania road makes a total of 6,800 freight cars for which contracts have been made within the last 30 days, and has caused a general boom in car manufacturing circles.

FOOTBALL SATURDAY.

Academy Puts Up a Plucky Fight Against State College.

The Academy football eleven went to State College on Saturday and held the strong State scrub down to a single touch down and goal or six points. It was a plucky fight, indeed, against the heavier and more experienced opponents who have lined up daily all fall against the State "Varsity." The scrub received the ball on the kick off and by terrific attacks on the Academy line carried the ball steadily down the field until Mitchell, after five minutes of play, scored the only touchdown of the game. Dodge kicked the goal. This was the time for the College men to score, if they were to score at all, for the Academy from this time on played a strong, defensive game and at times a strong offensive game. Gutelius, Stine and Weaver gained through the line and around the ends by such clever work as to provoke the admiration of the side lines. In the second half the Academy after advancing the ball consistently for several downs was forced to kick. Weaver punted high, Burns tried to fall on it over the line and Weaver diving after the ball had it in his full possession for a touchdown, Burns fumbling. The referee refused to allow the touchdown. The Academy protested hard, but it was no use. The boys from the hill are to be congratulated for their excellent playing. Sheppler in particular was conspicuous for the way he blocked his man and secured all fumbles. Next Saturday morning the Academy plays Williamsport High school in Williamsport.

The line up on Saturday was as follows:

State Scrub.	Positions.	Bf't Academy.
Ritchie	left tackle	Sheppler
McWilliams	left guard	Meyer
Shoemaker	center	Hevlman
Hann	right guard	Stover
Zinc	right tackle	Stine
Burns	right end	Lane
M. Dodge	quarter-back	Weaver
Henry	left half-back	Roelofs
Ferguson (Mitchell)	right ½ back	Gutelius
Higson (Van Horne)	full-back	Miller

Referee, Schofstall Umpire, Dunn. Touchdowns, Mitchell. Goal, Dodge. Time of halves, 20 and 17 minutes.

Aristocrats Travel Incognito.

It is said that in the past twelve months numerous European men of title have visited this country under assumed names, and the fact is explained in this way: When they come here the practice has been to associate them with a matrimonial venture. This is distasteful to those who are innocent of any intent to pick up an American heiress and fatal to those who really have such plans. Once put the tag "Fortune Hunter" on a bum baron or a spavined duke and his plans are ruined. For these reasons many of the members of the European aristocracy came over incognito.

Hicks' November Forecasts.

The first storm period covers the first six day's of the month, having its centre on the 3d,

The second storm period is central on the 8th and 9th. If changes to colder and high barometer follow the first storm period promptly, quick return to warmer and falling barometer will return on the 7th. Look out for gusts of autumn wind and rain at this time, followed by change to colder, with snow squalls and frosty nights.

The third storm period will culminate on the 14th, 15th and 16th, although its effects will be felt from the 12th to the 17th. About the 12th and 13th marked changes to warmer and falling barometer will begin in the west and by the 14th cloudiness and rain will be spreading eastward across the country. These general disturbances will reach most parts of the country from the 15th to the 17th, and decided changes to high barometer, heavy snow squalls and cold, high winds will follow promptly down from the northwest. Frosts and freezing may be expected during the nights succeeding these disturbances.

The fourth storm period is central on the 17th and 20th. The moon on the celestial equator on the 18th will bring a sudden reaction to warmer, the barometer will fall rapidily, wide cloud areas will form and autumnal squalls of rain turning to snow will visit many localities in their eastward journey across the country

The fifth storm period extends from the 24th to the 29th. We will forecast for this period the most severe and general storms of the month. Beginning about the time of the full moon on the 22nd the barometer will fluctuate and finally fall to marked storm readings. Temperature and winds will sympathize with low barometer. Clouds will organize in the western sections about the 25th, and during 26 h to 29th storms of decided force will march eastward across the country. The first stages of these storms will be warm and rainy, but the last stages of decided boreal character. As the storm centers work eastward, carrying with them the area of warmth and rain, westerly to northwesterly winds will follow, the barometer will rise and snow will take the place of rain in all northern sections. Stiff gales from the northwest will rush over the lake regions and through the interior generally bringing a good sized November cold wave.

The Strollers.

The Strollers, of Englander and Smiths' creation, will be presented at Garman's Opera House Monday evening Nov 14 with a carefully selected cast, including Robert Lett, Mr. Smith Marba, George Lydecker, Lester Bronw Geno Lineska, Maida Snyder and May Bouton. The production will be entirely new and the quality of the entertainment will be enhanced by the introduction of several new musical numbers which are to say the least promising and should prove popular hits. The book has been gone over and it is thoroughly up-to-date, and as the production has the endorsement of Nixon & Zimmerman, there is no reason why it should not be in every way worthy of their previous efforts.

The Strollers was done for ten weeks at the Knickerbocker Theatre, in New York and did a big business.

Togo Feasts in Case of Wilful Death.

When Admiral Togo was young, he and his fellow students at the naval academy in Japan are said to have practiced an entertainment that would hardly be approved in our world. They sat at a circular table, in the middle of which was a cannon, which revolved slowly, on a level with their heads. At some moment or other the cannon was discharged, from a spring outside the hall. The ball might pass between two heads, or it might remove any guest of the cheerful banquet. True or not, the story sketches graphically the fighting spirit of Japan. It is in line with hara-kiri. It may not be our view of morals or civility, but it surely encourages the soldier spirit. All Japanese life has a trend in this direction that we could hardly intimate even if we knew it would multiply our fighting powers. Woman in Japan leads a suppressed, cruelly dominated, and inferior existence, treated by her master as Americans treat a dog or cat; loved, perhaps, or rejected, from the veriest caprice. The Japanese believe that to allow women as large a share of influence as we allow them would mean a lessening of virility in the men, a greater tenderness, a growing fear of suffering or death. Soon or late, we fancy, Japan will in this respect be altered by intercourse with the world. Women will count in her fibre and opinion, hara-kiri will disappear, and future Togos will lack the training given by feasting in the face of wilful death.

Why the Flag Was Up.

"Teacher," said a Hannibal boy, as he came into the primary room one morning, "what is the flag upon the school building to-day for?" The teacher thought a moment and then answered: "I really can't remember what the flag is up to-day for, Johnny. You may go to the principal's room and look at the card and then you can come back and tell us." Johnny dashed off and a few minutes later returned, looking important. "Well, Johnny, what is the flag up for?" asked the teacher. "It's up to celebrate somebody's wedding," answered Johnny promptly. "Somebody's wedding!" repeated the teacher, thoughtfully, "why, Johnny, that can't be. We have no flag day that celebrates a wedding." "Well, it's got something to do with a wedding, anyway," maintained Johnny, stoutly. "The card says so." The teacher was unconvinced, and leaving the room, she went to make a personal inspection of the card. Under date of the day in question she read: "The engagement of the Monitor and the Merrimac."

Famous Indianapolis.

Indianapolis seems likely to retain her political fame; she still continues to furnish candidates for the Presidential ticket. Perhaps no city outside the capital is more closely interwoven with the history of American political life, says a writer in the National Magazine. I recalled the fact that for many years, with scarcely a break in the record, this city has furnished at least one representative on one of the national tickets. First it was Schuyler Colfax, who was on the ticket with Abraham Lincoln. Next came Hendricks, who made the run with Samuel J. Tilden; then came William H. English, who appeared in conjunction with General Hancock. Indianapolis continued to supply material for each successive campaign until Benjamin Harrison came upon the scene, being successful in his first contest and unsuccessful in his second. Now, in 1904, this city comes again to the front, giving a representative to the Republican national ticket in the person of Senator Charles Warren Fairbanks.

What to Drink.

The best time to drink water or other liquids in quantity is on rising, an hour and a half before luncheon and dinner, and half an hour before retiring.

Generally speaking, people do not drink water enough, or if they do, it is at the wrong time. Water may be taken at the close of a meal, but if many glasses are drank with meals disorders of digestion may follow. In fact, the desire to drink water copiously at mealtime is often an evidence of indigestion. Not more than two glasses of water or other liquid should be taken at mealtime, and practically no water should be drank when soup is served.

THE BEST medicine you can take to rid yourself of humors and clear your complexion, is Hood's Sarsaparilla—it's also THE CHEAPEST

HAND-TO-HAND ENCOUNTER

Japanese Continue to Make Onslaughts on the Forts of the City.

3 DAYS BOMBARDMENT

Ends in the Practical Destruction of the Shojusan, Keekwan and Niryusan Forts.

FORCES ONLY FORTY FEET APART.

Daily News from Dalny, November 6, via Kobe, November 7, says:

"After three days of continuous bombardment of Port Arthur, which caused extensive destruction to the Shojusan and Niryusan forts in the west center of the Russian line of defense, and also to Keekwan fort, the right wing of the Japanese army assaulted Shojusan Monday afternoon. Having carried the approaches to that height, the assailants entrenched themselves under the glacis of the forts. In the evening the left wing delivered an assault on Keekwan, fighting its way to the lower arapet. There the Japanese held their ground stubbornly in the face of Russian counter-attacks.

HAND TO-HAND CONFLICTS.

"Having been reinforced during the night, the Russians charged down upon the Japanese and desperate hand-to-hand conflicts ensued. The Japanese beat back the enemy and destroyed two covered positions in the front moat. A sub-lieutenant with thirty volunteers then succeeded in making his way to the fort. There he engaged in making a personal conflict with a Russian officer and killed him. Having discovered two more defences in the rear moat the sub-lieutenant withdrew his force with a loss of two men.

TAKEN AND RETAKEN TWICE.

"Later in the night, the advance-position of the Japanese was taken and retaken twice. The besiegers succeeded in holding the approaches and constructing trenches connecting them with the army's front parallel. At dawn numbers of dead were visible on the slopes. Fort "P" north of the new and old batteries in the left center of the line of defences was captured by the severe fighting of the night.

CASUALTIES IN LAST ATTACKS.

"These operations have successfully driven an effective wedge into the Russian center. Several explosions and extensive fires have occurred in the fortress within the last few days. The total casualties of the Japanese in the late attacks were 1,100. Over 500 were killed up to October 29. The spirit of the men were magnificent. The firing of all the guns is wonderfully effective.

CLIMAX OF THE BOMBARDMENT.

"The climax to the late bombardment came between 4 and 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon. It was a superb spectacle. Every fort of the enemy was engaged and the fighting in trenches constant and severe. The outposts of the contending forces were only forty feet apart. At 1 o'clock Monday morning one of the Japanese trenches collapsed into a Russian gallery. The enemy, being surprised underground, fled in confusion."

Diet.

The census shows that Americans are becoming addicted to less meat and more vegetables, cereals and products of the dairy. It is figured out that in 1850 a hundred Americans ate 94 sheep, 118 hogs and 125 beeves, whereas, in 1900, they consumed but 50 sheep, 43 hogs and 20 beeves. Cheese has declined, but if eggs and poultry are included with butter and milk as belonging to the dairy class, the consumption of that kind of food is three times what it was forty years ago. The total use of meat, reckoned by the price, is reduced by 36 per cent. In 1850 one hundred persons ate 430 bushels of wheat and 90 bushels of oats. In 1890 they ate 623 bushels wheat and 386 bushels oats, and in 1890 the breakfast food movement was small to what it is to-day. Corn and potatoes have increased about like wheat. The general gain in vegetable expense is 80 per cent. Meat still leads, however, although it apparently will not do so long. We spent in 1900 $1,625,000,000 for meat and $1,075,000,000 for vegetable diet. Among meats, beef leads, by a long distance, with sheep second and eggs third. Americans have grown healthier in the half-century which has seen this change, probably, however, on account of more air and exercise and better sanitation. The general question of the best relation of meat to vegetable diet is still one on which the medical world is far from concord.

—No matter how long you have had the cough; if it hasn't already developed into consumption, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will cure it.

Words of Condolence and Resolutions on the Death of Comrade D. H. Weaver.

WHEREAS Our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call our beloved comrade D. H. Weaver who served his country in the 148th Regt. and a member of John O. Campbell Post, No. 276, we offer these words of condolence:

Good-bye, Dear Comrade for a season. A few years more and we too shall lie down in sleep, the grass and flowers for our covering, resting in that undisturbed repose until the angel of the Resurrection shall sound the last reveille on that beautiful morning when all shall arise and the Father shall wipe all tears and bid us enter and welcome where eternal peace prevails

Resolved That we as a post that is fast diminishing in numbers feel deeply our loss and that we also extend to his bereft family our sincere and heartfelt sympathy.

Simplicity.

Beings who manufacture furniture at one time used to make their objects simple because decoration was expensive. Now we have progressed to the idea that simplicity is refinement and furniture advertisements are full of eloquent descriptions of that virtue. A hotel in New York advertises that it has "no marble halls or Moorish rooms." Charles Wagner's books on the simple life sell like popular fiction, which, in inspiration, finish, and originality, they much resemble. A whimsical artist complained that this popular movement had taken away the only thing which was left to men of taste. "They drove us away from the sumptuous," said he, "now they are making even simplicity commonplace." There is, of course, a distance that is immeasurable between art's simplicity and the imitation of it in machine-made furniture. Nevertheless, in educating our great mass of people, nothing lately has been of more value than the new idea that simplicity is the soul of beauty.—Collier's for November 5.

PORT ARTHUR DOOMED!

Japs Have Portion of the Town at Their Mercy.

POSITIONS ARE TAKEN

Which Command the City—From there in Overwhelming Numbers Mikado's Troops Can Drive Russian Soldiers Back.

WHEN THEY DESIRE TO ADVANCE.

CHEFOO, Nov. 4.—Port Arthur is doomed. The correspondent of The Associated Press here has received information that the Japanese now occupy positions which places the east side of the town at their mercy. The last assault has gained for them the positions which insure their ability to enter the main east forts whenever they are ready.

It is calculated by the Japanese that if the Russians do not surrender the latter will be capable of prolonging their final stand at Liaoti Mountain, and on the Tigers Tail for a much longer time, with the mere hope of prolonging the struggle. Long before the Second Pacific Squadron arrives the Japanese flag will wave over the wrecked citadel. This will end Viceroy Alexieff's dream of an unconquerable city.

CAN DRIVE RUSSIANS BACK

The Japanese have not occupied the main forts and highest points of the east hills, but they occupy in overwhelming numbers positions which will enable them to drive the Russians back whenever they desire. When the Japanese occupy the East Port Ridge, they will completely dominate the other Russian forts with their guns.

A censored dispatch from The Associated Press representative with the Japanese army does not give any particulars of a general engagement going on at Port Arthur, but it is certain it occurred, and that some forts were captured. Terrific explosions heard here indicate that the Russians have exploded mines and destroyed other property

MOUNTAIN POSITIONS CAPTURED.

Japanese arriving from Dalny today report that the Japanese have captured Rihlung Mountain and Sungshu Mountain which lies between the railroad and Rihlung Mountain. They also report that the Japenese have captured East Keekwan Mountain.

Conservative Japanese, realizing the intense desire of the Japanese for good news on the emperor's birthday, received the above reports with reserve. Regarding the capture of Ruhlung and Sungshu Mountains the report is not considered improbable, but Japanese say it is not intended to occupy East Keekwan Mountain.

CAN'T HOLD EAST KEEKWAN

In August the Japanese succeeded in entering East Keekwan, as was related in these dispatches at that time, but under the concentrated fire of the other forts they were compelled to retire. Japanese officers here say that it is impossible to hold East Keekwan, and therefore an attempt on that position is presumably only a feint.

When the Japanese occupied the Russian trenches on Ruhlung Mountain it is said the Russians turned a current of water into the trenches but that the Japanese held fast. Previous to this Japanese shells exploded two land mines on Ruhlung Mountain.

The Temperance Outlook

In Vermont, the State which passed the first temperance law, which they secured by popular vote—and it is needless to say that women do not vote in Vermont—a license system. But while little Vermont has proved so weak, great Texas, larger than twenty-eight Vermonts, and where the fiercest battles have been driven the traffic from county after county until nearly half of the counties are now wholly dry, and this, too, after an expenditure of a sum of money by the liquor forces which is without parallel in other campaigns. It is safe to say that three-fourths of the population of Texas is now under prohibition.

Mississippi has prohibition in sixty-five counties and many towns in Tennessee have given larger majorities for it. Minnesota forbids a man to give another a drink of liquor without a license, and requires all patent medicines to show the amount of alcohols they contain.

Kansas' prohibitory law, as shown by official statistics, saves the State six million dollars annually, forty-four out of one hundred and four counties being without a pauper, in three counties not a criminal case, and in twenty-five not enough poor to attempt the maintenance of a poorhouse. No wonder the voters declared by an overwhelming majority for the enforcement of the prohibitory law.

In other parts of the world the governments are taking up the temperance reform. In Austria last year the government issued 100,000 copies of a pamphlet entitled, "Away with Alcohol." In Paris, the director of the Poor Relief and the chief constable officially issued large posters with the heading in large letters, "The Dangers of Alcohol," followed by paragraphs setting forth the dangers of drink, and placarded the entire city with them. Imagine the effect if our strenuous President would so placard our capital city, and yet we give our thanks to Congress for passing a bill outlawing the sale of liquor in the capitol building, and also for a law forbidding the sale of intoxicants in the New Hebrides islands, by American citizens, and making two appropriations of half a million dollars each for the erection of recreation buildings at military posts.

In Mexico the physicians unite in condemning the wave of alcoholism that has come with the American bar-room, and the government is anxious to stop the sale of liquor, and its action is almost universally approved by the people. In several other counties there is a decided awakening on the part of the authorities to the evils wrought by drink, and the International Temperance Congress held in Bremen has given a strong impetus to the reform.

New Zealand—note this—New Zealand, which was the nearest to prohibition of any in the world, where the people most nearly manage their own affairs, is the most abstemious country in the world, consuming less than one-twentieth of a gallon per capita annually. This one fact proves what has long been my contention, that the people do not want the liquor traffic, and that it is pushed on them by the politicians who reap advantage from it in various ways. This remedy is to bring about a system in which people will actually govern themselves, as they certainly do not now.

King Edward has placed the ban on wine drinking in the army, declaring that the practice must cease, and that his health can be drunk as well in water as in wine. In every army school in England and the colonies scientific temperence teaching has been compulsory since fourth month, 1903. The results have been so satisfactory that the London school board strongly urge local school committees to adopt the principle.

In Germany Count von Hae-eler, one of the Emperor's military intimates, and an abstainer for twenty-five years, has issued a strong protest against the use of liquor by soldiers, declaring that the soldier who abstains is the best man and the best soldiers. He also says that brandy is the worst poison of all, but that beer comes next to it in ill effects. A Berlin dispatch states that the Emperor has been having the experiment made at some posts of having no drinks save coffee and lemonade sold, and this without a protest from the rank and file, and that the issue of brandy and beer as part of the rations will be abolished throughout the Empire in the near future.

Roosevelt Names Thanksgiving Day.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The President has issued the Thanksgiving Day proclamation, setting aside Thursday, November 24 "to be observed as a day of festival and Thanksgiving by all the people of the United States at home and abroad."

The proclamation was issued from the State Department by Secretary Hay. It acknowledges the debt of the American people to God for the blessing upon the Nation during the past year, in which "reward has waited upon honest effort," and calls on the Nation devoutly to give thanks to Almighty God for the benefits he has conferred upon us as individuals and as a nation, and to beseech him that in the future "his divine favor may be continued to us."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S PROCLAMATION.

"By the President of the United States:

"It has pleased Almighty God to bring the American people in safety and honor through another year, and in accordance with the long unbroken custom, handed down to us by our forefathers, the time has come when a special day shall be set apart in which to thank Him who holds all nations in the hollow of His hand for the mercies thus vouchsafed to us.

"During the century and a quarter of our National life we, as a people, have been blessed beyond all others, and for this we owe humble and heartfelt thanks to the Author of all blessings.

"This year that has just closed has been one of peace within our borders and as well between us and all other nations.

"THOSE WHO WORK ARE PROSPERING."

"The harvest has been abundant, and those who work, whether with hand or brain, are prospering greatly. Reward has waited upon honest effort. We have been enabled to do our duty to ourselves and to others.

"Never has there been a time when religious and charitable effort has been more evident. Much has been given to us and much will be expected from us.

"We speak of what has been done by the Nation in no spirit of boastfullness or vainglory, but with full and reverent realization that our strength is as nothing unless we are helped from above.

ALL SHOULD FEEL RESPONSIBILITY.

"Hitherto we have been given the heartiest strength to do the tasks allotted to us as they severally arose.

"We are thankful for all that has been done for us in the past, and we pray that in the future we may be strengthened in the unending struggle to do our duty fearlessly and honestly, with charity and good will, with respect for ourselves and with love toward our fellow-man.

"In this great Republic the effort to combine National strength with personal freedom is being tried on a scale more gigantic than ever before in the world's history.

"Our success will mean much, not only for ourselves, but for the future of all mankind; and every man or woman in our land should feel the grave responsibility resting upon him or her, for in the last analysis this success must depend upon the high average of our individual citizenship, upon the way in which each of us does his duty by himself and his neighbor.

URGES DAY OF THANKSGIVING

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday November 24, to be observed as a day of festival and thanksgiving by all the people of the United States at home and abroad and do recommend that on that day they cease from their ordinary occupations and gather in their several places of worship or in their homes, devoutly to give thanks unto Almighty God for the benefits He has conferred upon us as individuals and as a Nation, and to beseech Him that in the future His divine favor may be continued to us.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington this 1st day of November, in the year of our Lord 1904 and of the independence of the United States the 129th.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"By the President: JOHN HAY, Secretary of State."

Before commencing its use I was in such a shape that I could hardly get up when once down." For sale by C. M. Parrish.

Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Vin-te-na cleanse the blood and warms it. When the blood is rich and clean the nerves are fed and made steady and strong. Vin-te-na cures every form of weakness and disease due to feeble nerve force. WONDERFUL FARM METHODS OF A PENNSYLVANIA PREACHER.

Though He Had But Fifteen Acres He Gave Old-Time Agriculturists Points on Raising Crops—Same Tactics to be Applied on a Large Scale.

Some agricultural papers have wondered if the methods that J. D. Detrich has applied with remarkable results to 15 acres of land can be adopted with equal success for large tracts. Detrich says it can be done and he is now trying to prove it. He has sold the 15 acres in Montgomery county, Pa., where he has achieved a national fame, and has taken 340 acres in Chester county, to which he is applying the same methods. He will try to demonstrate that he can do on this large farm what he has a ccomplished in a small way. He has no doubt of his success, and if he proves that the highly intensive methods he has practiced for years in raising crops for dairy purposes can be realized on a large scale, he will have practically solved the question of profitable agriculture in the Eastern States.

Detrich is a clergyman, whose 15-acre farm has attracted attention simply because more money is being made from it than from any other 15 acres devoted to the dairy industry in the United States. When the little farm came into his hands, about 20 years ago, the land was so worn that it could not produce vegetables enough for the kitchen or hay enough for a horse and two cows. For years now this little place has produced everything required for the sustenance of from 32 to 35 cows and two horses, excepting such concentrated food as bran and cottonseed meal, also all the vegetables needed by the family. Dairymen usually think they need at least three to four acres to each head of live stock, but here is a man who makes each acre support two head.

ENORMOUS INCREASE IN PRODUCTION.

It may readily be seen that if Detrich's methods are capable of practical application by a large number of farmers the influence upon production and profits will be enormous. The experts of the Agricultural Department have estimated that a general application of Detrich's methods would be worth $40,000,000 a year to the dairying interests of the country. Farmers have been greatly interested to learn how he does it. All the agricultural papers for the past year have given much attention to his operations, He has been in great demand as a lecturer at farmers' institutes and his place became so overrun with visitors that he had to cry a halt. If he were paid, he said, to run his place as a model farm it would be all right, but if it was to be continued as a private enterprise he must really give more attention to his own business and less to that of the general public.

It is said that the Agricultural Department at Washington expects soon to devote a bulletin to the story of Mr. Detrich's little farm showing how he has succeeded in increasing its productivity some four or five fold per acre above that of the average.

His 15-acre farm first became known through two long articles in the American Agriculturist in 1902. It was shown that he has developed one of the most intensive systems of raising crops to feed to dairy stock that was known anywhere and that the management and feeding of his herd had reached a degree of proficiency that was scarcely equaled at any experiment station; and all the work on this remarkable farm is done by one man and a small boy, excepting for a few weeks in the harvest time. We speak of only one harvest time when we refer to the work of the average farmer, but Detrich raises three crops a year on his place.

The first thing he did was to find out exactly what his soil lacked in the conetituents of plant food, and then to supply the deficiency. To tell what he did would make a long story, of interest chiefly to farmers and students of agricultural chemistry. It is sufficient here to say that no scientific experts know how to make a soil more fertile than that which he has been tilling for years. When he seeds a piece to clover in August the crop in November will be thick and matted under foot like the nap of a velvet carpet. Where he raisee corn the crop is often high enough in six weeks to hide a horse. He cuts three crops of hay a year from each of his hayfields. His corn, barley, oats, rye and Canadian field peas are all raised to be cut green for fodder or for silage, and each bit of ground gives three big crops a year. These green crops make splendid feed, are sweet and full of nutrition, and the animals never tire of them, for their food is varied from one crop to another.

TREATMENT OF HAY.

He has a method of curing his hay instead of drying it, thus preserving most of the original qualities of sweetness and freshness. He has never bought a pound of fodder, straw or litter. For seven months his animals fed on the green fodder cut for them, and for five months on the hay and silage he makes. They are in the stable or barnyard the year round.

Of course, with Mr. Detrich's intensive system of farming he cannot give an acre of ground to pasturage. All the space is devoted to crops, and every bit of forage and material that comes from the field is cut into quarter-inch lengths before it is fed. His second crop is not fed from the field, but is stored away in two silos, each holding 60 tons, and this 120 tons of fodder is provided by four and one-half acres of land. The live stock are fodder ed in stalls or in the barnyard. The problems of exercise and air have been solved, the animals are kept in the best of condition, and the quality and appearance of the cows would make them conspicuous at any State fair. The cows are of the best dairy stock, and their milk brings the highest price in the Philadelphia market.

The result of the study, the intelligence and the skillful management that have been applied to this little farm is that the most money to the acre that has been made in the dairying business in our country has been made on this small tract of land. This is reason enough for the celebrity that has come to Mr. Detrich's enterprise, and the results of his methods applied to a far greater acreage will be awaited with interest.—Norman Haldship, in the Pittsburg Dispatch.

That Agricultural Exhibit..

There has been considerable discussion indulged in by some of the state newspapers concerning the paucity of the agricultural exhibit made by Pennsylvania at the St. Louis fair. Shafts of ridicule have been hurled at the committee who were responsible for the display, or rather lack of display, made until the ordinary citizen felt that he had an inclination to feel ashamed of his state.

Personally we have not seen this production of the agricultural resources of the state and are, therefore, not qualified to speak at first hand or from observation, and while we have had our doubts as to the correctness of the reports which have been so widely circulated, we have not felt in possession of sufficient facts to enable us to prove the charges incorrect.

It is authoritatively stated the St. Louis Exposition has awarded three grand prizes to the state's department of agriculture. These are the highest possible awards attainable. With these it has been granted seventy-three gold, silver and bronze medals. It seems to us that this record achieved in a competitive exhibition with the other states should be a sufficient rebuttal of all the cavil and growling that has been indulged in. The exhibit was sufficient to secure the recognition and awards of the judges of the Exposition and it will be eminently satisfactory to the state at large.

The exhibit of the state at large taken as a whole ranks second to the state of Missouri the home state of the Exposition. In mining and minerals Pennsylvania outranks every other state and is excelled in her fishery exhibit only by the United States exhibit.—Clinton County Times.

Escaped From Prison.

News has reached us from headquarters that Robert Lett alias August Lump, a Stroller, has again succeeded in breaking jail. His efforts this time also freed his sweetheart, Bertha Von Bingle. This is about the one hundreth time this lively pair have evaded the officers of the law and their escape never fails to evoke round after round of applause from each amused audience that witnesses the performance of Englander & Smith's pretty comedy opera "The Strollers," which will be seen here in a few weeks. Those desirous of witnessing the best of musical comedy performances and having a hearty laugh, such as has never been equalled in years, and seeing Bump and his side partner put on their way as merry strollers will be afforded an excellent opportunity to do so.

OYSTER HATCHING IN PUBLIC.

New Jersey's Interesting Exhibit at the World's Fair.

St. Louis, Oct 31.—World's Fair visitors can witness the novel sight of oyster hatching and oyster culture in all of its stages in New Jersey's interesting exhibit in the Forestry, Fish and Game Building. The life of the oyster from the spat to the full grown bi-valve is shown in this exhibit where the habits of the oyster and the methods of handling it may be studied.

In a large glass tank, filled with sea water, see moss and mud from the oyster fields off the New Jersey coast, the oysters may be seen. Here is the spat of the oyster before hatching and here may be seen the development of the oyster from the spat or egg state to the ostreidae or young oysters.

Within two hours after the spat of the oyster is deposited, it begins to undergo a transformation by hardening and the changes which follow are numerous until the young oysters become living shell-fish two weeks later. These tiny oysters cling to everything that is stationary, nature impelling them to do this in order to escape being swept away by the tide. Some specimens are shown in the cabinete at the World's Fair, clinging to an old pipe that had been dropped into the bay, others are seen clinging to a doll, others to a baby's shoe and others to a set of false teeth that some one had lost. As a barnacle the young oyster clings to anything that come its way. It does not move but attaches itself to various objects.

The oyster is good to eat at three years of age and is prime at four years and oyer. The New Jersey exhibit shows all of the phases of the oyster industry. The spat, the young and old oysters, the tongs for catching oysters in shallow water, the ironing oysters in shallow water, the iron dredge with chain attachment for dragging the bottom of the bay for oysters, pictures of the oyster spat and pictures of the spat or eggs magnified many times.

The clam industry is also a feature of the New Jersey exhibit, the various stages of the clam being shown from the egg to the soft shell or little neck clam, which is the young clam, to the hard shell or old clam. Lobsters and crabs are also shown in their several stages.

In a large tank, forty feet in diameter, and ten feet deep, is an assortment of sea fish; sharks, pike and other denizens of the deep. This tank contains sixty feet of sea water and the fish may be seen swimming about at all times.

The New Jersey fishing exhibit is in charge of Benjamin S. Lore, an expert in oyster culture, who takes pleasure in explaining the oyster and fishing exhibit to World's Fair visitors.

"I was taken down with what our physicians said was indigestion. I doctored with the best around here and found no relief. I wrote to you and you sent me a question blank to fill out and I did so and you then advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. A BELLEFONTE CASE.

Many More Like it in Bellefonte.

The following case is but one of many similar occurring daily in Bellefonte. It is an easy matter to verify its correctness. Surely you cannot ask for better proof than such a conclusive evidence.

William Vallance, of 221 East Lamb street, says: "People who read the Bellefonte papers have probably seen the testimonial given by me in 1897 recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. As stated therein I suffered a great deal some years ago with my back and kidneys. There were pains through the loins and in the upper part of my spine, a disagreeable feeling in the head and acute weakness of the back right over the kidneys. I read of many cures which Doan's Kidney Pills had made in Bellefonte and I got a box at F. Potts Green's drug store began using them. They removed the lameness and banished the aching. They did so much good that I would not hesitate to recommend them, and can indorse them again with just as much confidence, for during the seven years since I made my first statement they have never failed to give me relief."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole agents for the United States.
